JOSEPH RALPH McDONALD

Joseph Ralph McDonald was born January 30, 1924, at Salt Lake City, son of Storm and Verna McDonald.

"While in high school, I participated in music, commercial, and debating contests. I won highly superior ratings as trumpet soloist at regional music festivals and was offered musical scholarships to two universities. I placed first in a bookkeeping contest at the intermountain commercial meet at BYU in 1942 and was awarded a scholarship to BYU for this honor. I graduated from high school in 1942.

"In 1942 I began a pre-medical course at the University of Utah, and enlisted in the navy that same year. In 1943 I continued my pre-medical duty in the Navy V-12 Officers' Training Program. In September, 1944, I returned to the U. of U. college of medicine and received a doctor of medicine degree in August, 1947, at the age of 23.

"While in medical school I met and courted Marilyn Bertoch of Granger, Utah, then a student nurse at Holy Cross Hospital in Salt Lake City. We were married in the spring of 1947, prior to my graduation.

"I had been intrigued by the beauty of the Northwest following a trip there with my parents in 1939. Therefore I applied, and was accepted, to interne at St. Vincent's Hospital in Portland, Oregon. I stayed in Portland an additional year after my internship to get training in orthopedic surgery at the Portland Clinic, one of the oldest and largest clinics in the Northwest.

"I entered private medical practice in Pendleton, Oregon, in October, 1949, but just one year later was recalled to active duty by the navy at the outbreak of the Korean War. I was loaned to the army and assigned to duty at Madigan Army Hospital, in the fracture and orthopedic service. My previous orthopedic training was very valuable in equipping me to treat battle casualties. During my military service I also served in Japan, in an army general hospital, and in Korea, where I was in charge of the fracture and orthopedic service at an evacuation hospital. I was discharged from the army as a captain in 1952.

"Upon discharge from military duty I returned to the general practice of medicine in Pendleton in association with two other physicians, Dr. W. R. Weissert and Dr. L. J. Feves, who is now president of the Oregon State Medical Society. I have served as president of the Umatilla County Medical Society and president of the Pendleton Hospital staff, and was secretary of the Eastern Oregon District Medical Society. I have been active in LDS Church work, serving as MIA superintendent and, with my wife Marilyn, as ward and stake dance directors. I have worked in scouting as a troop committee chairman and district committeeman. I am a director of a Pendleton riding club.

"As an avocation, I raise registered quarter horses and spend what time I can in riding and training them. I have always loved horses and get a lot of satisfaction in this activity. I try to arrange one fishing or hunting trip on horseback into the nearby Wallowa Mountains each year.

"We have four lovely children, a girl and three boys: Patricia Marie, Joseph Ralph Jr., Philip Storm and Kevin."

JAMES AND SARAH FERGUSON McDONALD

James McDonald was born June 1, 1802, in Crawfordburn, County Down, Ireland, son of Moses McDonald and Mary Glass. He married Sarah Ferguson in Ireland about 1825 or 1826. She was born October 13, 1803, in Lisburn, Ireland, daughter of Samuel and Nancy Alderice Ferguson. They were the parents of 10 children: Jane, born 1826; John, born 1828, who died in infancy; Eliza, born 1830; John, born 1832; William, born 1834; Mary, born 1836; David, born 1836, who died in infancy; Hyrum, born 1839, dying in infancy; Robert, born 1840, and Joseph, born 1842, all born in Ireland, and Hyrum, born 1846 at Nauvoo, Illinois, and who died in infancy.

The McDonalds first heard the missionaries of the LDS Church in Belfast, Ireland, in 1841, and invited them to hold meetings in their home. They were one of the first five families to be baptized. Immediately they desired to come to Zion, but were poor and had no means. Through their industriousness they saved enough for the trip and in 1843 sailed from Liverpool, England, with a company of 250 saints. The boat was small and crowded. Two days after they left, the wind died down and they could not move for 10 days. Then a storm struck which lasted three days and nights, damaging the ship and leaving everyone seasick and fearing for their lives. Finally the storm blew off their course and they made the crossing in six weeks to New Orleans. There they boarded the Prophet Joseph Smith's steamboat, "Maid of Iowa," and went up the Mississippi to Nauvoo, a 10-day trip. Hyrum Smith met them and offered an old home to them in which to live. They had 75 cents remaining when they arrived, which was spent on an ax. The old home had no doors or windows, but they repaired it and made it livable. Then theague struck and they suffered with it nine months, finally being able to seek work. James was employed with a farmer, who paid in produce, and they earned two cows, two wagons, vegetables, flour and cornmeal to last through the winter. They remained in Nauvoo two and one-half years before the mob drove them out. They went to Boneparte, Iowa, living there three years in preparing to move west. In 1849 they lived at Kanesville, near Council Bluffs, and in the spring of 1850 began their journey to Utah with three yoke of oxen, two yoke of cows and a pony, plus their wagon and provisions. Cholera broke out when they reached the Platte River and many died. James helped dig a grave for a man at 10 a.m. and before many hours he had been afflicted himself and died before dark that night. The next morning his body was wrapped in a quilt and buried at the second crossing of the Platte River on June 18, 1850. Sarah was grief-stricken, but Jane, the eldest child, took up her father's whip and the journey continued. The oldest sons helped procure meat and food along the way. They arrived in Utah with Company J in September, 1850, and spent six weeks in Salt Lake, then moving to Mountainville (now Alpine), where they spent the winter and moved on to Springville in March, 1851. Sarah's children worked to support their mother, but gradually married or moved away for work. She served as the first Relief Society president in Springville, and in 1862 moved with her sons, John, William and Joseph, and daughters, Jane and Mary, to Heber, where they all took up land, built homes and reared their families. The boys built a home for their mother across from her daughter, Jane Clyde. She died in Heber in 1883 at the age of 78.

JOHN AND MARY LUCINDA COLE McDONALD

John McDonald and his wife, Mary Lucinda Cole, were part of the history and development of Wasatch County. John arrived in Nauvoo from Ireland with his parents, brothers and sisters in 1844, when he was 11 years old. During the years of
